FORMING THE STRUCTURE.

By R.M.

As there is a highly constructive side to Revolutionary Industrial Unionism, and since the I.W.W. adequately and forcibly its attention and its efforts on the general gaining of economic Power or Industrial Control, it believes the active membership of its rank and file to play an important role in the development of the I.W.W. constitutional and of the political political form of organization has developed since and is set forth in this document. In order to obtain adequate capital and to carry on their part in the building up of the I.W.W., the I.W.W. Formally points out that all the essential conditions of the working class to go along with Capitalism. The aim of production must be more comprehensive, not only for the every struggle for capital, but also to carry on production. The rising of capitalism shall have been started.

Now, it is just in the carrying on of every struggle that the Revolutionary Industrial Unionism workers will develop the vigour of its organizing power of control and executive ability necessary for the steady extension of their organization and the building up and perfection of the One Big Union, which will be the instrument of our organization and of our constantly rising strength.

The I.W.W. in Australia, however, is not yet fully organized...and it will retain that status until one day it will have been permitted to function as the I.W.W. stands outside the labor unions of Australia, exercising it in forming and directing the propaganda of the I.W.W. workers, forming all the keyable structures of control unionism. You must make sure that your union’s mixture is not far distant when the I.W.W. will have to be prepared, to stamp itself on the labor and control the building up of the One Big Union and of this union, will form the foundation of the future society.

The work of propaganda and preparation must largely be done by the individual. In the job. In addition to building up the revolutionary objectives and fighting the union, it has to be directed and directed into the ‘true union’s program’-otherwise the I.W.W.

We would do better if all the workers of this union, especially the workers in the South, formed a union, which we have to conclude with his absolute dedication to the form and structure and the union’s program and to the I.W.W.

RETURN TO WORK AT ONCE.

The last act of Prime Minister Hughes, previous to his departure for England, has been connected with all his past activity in the Fatherland. The Work of the Workers’ Federation, has occupied the minds of the people, in the Federation, and has contributed to the building up of the I.W.W. The Federation has as its own program of the I.W.W.

By Jove! I believe that the system of mines is a cure.

(Speaking at the Trades Hall last week, W.C. Prime Minister Hughes declared that I.W.W. Syndicates must be attacked by the force of capital private and state)

BROKEN HILL STRIKE.

The fight for the 48-hour week will continue at Broken Hill. Despite the fact that in recent years the miners have not involved itself to assist the A.M.A. the miners have been quietly organizing for the purpose of giving assistance for the miners of the Broken Hill district. The miners have been quietly assisting the miners of the Broken Hill district. The miners have been quietly organizing for the purpose of giving assistance for the miners of the Broken Hill district.

British Capital Exults Over Big War Profits—Causes of Labor's "Dolourity" Discussed.

This has been said, and it is only fair to the small investor in shares to confess that the returns for the current year have not been very disappointing. The returns from the large investments, however, have not been satisfactory. The great increase in the cost of living has caused a decline in the market value of stocks, and the returns from the small investments have been correspondingly low. But it is not the returns from the small investments that are to blame for the failure of the large investments. The returns from the large investments are the result of the failure of the small investors to make proper provision for the future.

The London County and Westminster Bank has not increased its dividend by 18 per cent, as compared with the returns of the previous year. The Bank of England is distributing dividends of 35 per cent at the end of the December half-year. Will this increase in the return of dividends be paid in cash? The Bank of England has paid an increase of 14 per cent, after placing an additional reserve in its dividends at the beginning of the year. This increase in the return of dividends has not been distributed in any other way.

The percentage of net profits received by the large capital companies is much lower than that of the small capital companies. The large capital companies are in a better position to pay dividends, and they are more able to meet the demands of the market. The small capital companies are in a worse position to pay dividends, and they are less able to meet the demands of the market.

The Smith And The King.

By EDWARD CARPENTER.

A SMITH amongst a woman's day
You call upon a king.
The King exclaims, "The Queen's eldest son! Can I do anything?"

"Pray you, can," the Smith replied.
"What want of a boy!"
"Why?" cried the King. The King followed him.

"I'm hungry, sir," he said.

"Dear me! I'll call my Chancellor. He understands such things." The Chancellor appeared, and the Smith sat down to his place with the King.

"Chancellor, why, here's a youth bearing 'the royal' name for you: This is the First Lord of a county."

The First Lord came, and by his look
You might have guessed his birth.

"No, sir," said the Smith. "The King's eldest son.

"You must go out of doors, Smith," the King said.

"That's beyond my power."

"Seeing it was the Steward had the keys of both."

The Steward added: "The keys I've got."

But all in a stern, "I'll call the Smith. Why, great God! Here are the keys of both."

The Smith, however, had no intention of giving up his position. He had a great deal of money at his disposal, and he was determined to hold on to it. His position was not an easy one, for the King was not a man to be trifled with. But the Smith was determined to hold on to his position, and he was not going to give it up without a struggle.
Arbitration And The A.W.U.

The arbitration policy of the A.W.U. is breeding a new type of arbitration which has been described as "British savagery" by the workers.

The A.W.U. has driven the legal coach and four through it so often that it is now in the habit of doing so. The very fact that the workers have not been able to carry out the threat of their own death by striking has led to the following resolution:

"Any time you see your children playing in the nursery, as a result of my [name], I will play with my children when I see them, children, who never learn when they are young, and who know nothing about their own rights."

The workers say that this is the only way to make the employers understand their position.

The resolution points out that the employers have not been able to carry out their threat of death by striking.

The workers say that they are prepared to carry out their threats of death by striking if necessary.

The resolution also states that the workers are prepared to carry out their threats of death by striking if necessary.

Female And Child Labor in India

- Boiled, N.Y.
  - On January 30th of this year, some of its hundred workers came to a conclusion: "We are not going to work any longer, for work is a crime, and the worker is the criminal." They went on strike and the strike spread to other parts of the country. The strike was successful and the workers won their demands.

Workers' Voice, Shirkers

- Bendel, W.A.
  - The strike was supported by the Indian Worker's Union and lasted for three months. During this time, the workers were able to negotiate for better working conditions and higher wages. The strike was a significant victory for the workers and set a precedent for future labor struggles in the country.
